HONDO HAS TWELFTH TRADES DAY.

The Trades Day introduced a year ago by the merchants of Hondo, and sponsored by them, arrived at its first anniversary, Wednesday, August 12, 1931, with an exceptionally large attendance. At times during the twelve months the gatherings were not as large as were hoped for but in these few times it was found to be not lack of interest but the busy seasons for the farmer that thinned the ranks. It is cheerful and encouraging to know, however, that at the majority of the gatherings record crowds were in attendance, and interest high.

The Trades Day has proven a success, from all indications, the merchants of Hondo are ready and willing to continue this feature. The venture has succeeded in extending Hondo's trade territory to the remote corners of Medina County and even into bordering counties.

Prof. W. N. Saathoff was master of ceremonies for the birthday party and began the drawing at 3 P. M. The following were winners: First, the cow, by Mrs. Adolph Graff; second, the pig, by Robert Clemens; third, the chickens, by Mrs. John Bohlen. The surprise gifts donated by local merchants were drawn as follows: Bucket of cup grease donated by O. H. Miller, Mrs. Phil Jagge; baking dish donated by Holloway Bros., Miss Hope Love; suit cleaned and pressed donated by Jennings Tailor Shop, Robt. Brien; case of soda water donated by Hondo Bottling and Transfer Co., Mrs. Anna Saathoff; gift donated by Popular Dry Goods Store, Frank Muennink and jug of homemade molasses donated by Henry Batot, Joe Huesser.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Doerr of San Antonio and Miss Bessie Frerichs of upper Hondo have just returned from a two weeks' vacation spent with Mrs. Doerr's brother, Mr. W. F. Frerichs, at Douglas, Arizona. Mr. Frerichs is employed by the Phelps Dodge Corporation, the second largest copper producer and fabricator in the United States. The trip was made overland from Hondo to Douglas in less than two days, covering a distance of 900 miles, and the same length of time was required for the return trip. The party reports a fine trip, good roads and excellent climate, most of the time being spent in the northern part of the state of Sonora, Mexico and the Chiricahua National forest of Arizona, which has an altitude of from 8,000 to 10,000 feet.

Mr. Louie Breiten and family, Erwin Leinweber and Roy Breiten of Hondo, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hughes and mother, Mrs. Sallie Marshall of Goose Creek, Texas, and Private R. L. Watkins of Fort Sam Houston were visiting Mr. Breiten's daughter, Mrs. Ida Crisp, and children at Uvalde.

IN MEMORIAM.

E. W. Lacy was born in Dade County, Mo., March 27, 1847, and fell asleep at his home near Hondo, Texas, at 11:50 A. M., August 4, 1931. A long and useful life came to an end. Words are too cold to describe the life of such a man.

It matters not at what angle Brother E. W. Lacy may be viewed, his life was a success.

He started upon his career with an uneven chance with the world. In early life he was bereft of his parents, left without their guidance, their prayers, their holy influence, and their parental love. Instead of these being hindrances, they brought forth the best of his nature. He realized there is gold under the grass for everyone, if we would but find it, and he found it.

In his early manhood he started life with three objectives: To be a true soldier of Jesus Christ, to raise a Christian family, and to make a definite contribution for the betterment of his country.

In the early days of his long life, he sought first the Kingdom of God, and united with the Methodist church where he remained true and faithful until his tired body ceased its labors.

He was a good provider for his family, but he refused to allow the material things to thwart the great purpose of life. He sought God first and He remained first until the end.

For almost half a century, he was a steward, and recording steward, a trustee of the local church property, and a teacher in the Sunday school he so much loved. Under physical difficulties and handicapped with the infirmities of age, he was found in his place on the Lord's day up to the very last.

His sturdy Scotch blood, controlled by the blessed Holy Spirit, produced a character worthy of emulation.

He was married to Miss Jennie M. Bissett, November 25, 1869, and to this union was born Mrs. Ella Woolls, Mrs. D. W. Short, Bettie, who died in infancy, and Olin Earl Lacy. While the children were still young his companion passed away.

On February 24, 1886, he was married to Miss Sallie A. Patterson. She lived about two years after their marriage. To this union no children were born.

On October 21, 1896, he was married to Miss Cora Kerr, and to this union were born Mrs. Ashbel Gilliam and Mrs. James Amberson.

For many years he called his children around the family altar, reading some portion of Scripture, and on their bended knees he committed them to the care of his heavenly Father. During his last sickness, in his wakeful hours, he spoke of having family prayers. The Shepherd Psalm was the last Scripture he read, perhaps he was thinking of "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me". Often while making a pastoral call Brother Lacy would say, "Cora get the Bible and let Brother Long have prayers with us." "Heaven come down our souls to greet, while glory crowned the mercy seat." The result of this devotion is testified in the character of his children.

In young manhood he moved to Gonzales County on Peach Creek, where he is still remembered by the old settlers as a good citizen.

In 1871, he moved to Medina County and settled on the Hondo. Indians made frequent raids upon the community, endangering the lives of the early settlers. He bore his part in establishing law and order at this time. Medina County was the border of civilization. Dangers and privations were the common lot of the citizens of those days. How truly it is that we are the heirs of their sacrificial labors. The Indians frequently made raids upon the community, stealing their property, killing and scalping the early settlers. In addition to this, the settled sections of our country pushed their undesirable on the western pioneer, making living the more hazardous.

During the Civil War, he enlisted for the principles for which the Confederacy stood. Returning home he found the South was impoverished, property laid waste, together with all the evils that follow in the wake of war. He, with the others, brought order out of chaos, reorganized society and re-established their homes. He was a member of Company F., 3rd Mo. Calvary.

OBITUARY FOR HARVEY HENRY FRERICHS.

Harvey Frerichs was found dead in his car about middle of the afternoon Sunday, August 9, 1931, where he had parked near the home of his sister, Mrs. Alfred Bader, in the southeast part of town. He was shot in the head with the load from a shot gun, found beside him in the car, and had been dead for some time when his body was discovered.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Horger Undertaking establishment, and following the arrival of his brother, Will Frerichs and family, from Arizona, the body was buried in the Oakwood Cemetery Tuesday afternoon. Services were conducted by Rev. Liebfarth, Pastor of the local Lutheran church, who kindly furnished us the following sketch.

Harvey Henry Frerichs was born April 29, 1905, in Medina County, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Frerichs. Four months later the faithful parents had their son baptized in the Lutheran Church at New Fountain. By this act he was born again by water and the Holy Spirit, and became a child of God. When only three years of age, his mother passed away. The family had the deceased duly instructed in the fundamentals of Christian faith and church membership, and in St. Paul's Lutheran Church at Hondo, on July 13, 1919, he was confirmed in this faith.

The departed attended the public school at Hondo, and left the same after finishing the eleventh grade. He worked on a ranch until shortly before his end, part of the time making his home with a sister. His father died in 1920. He lived 26 years, 3 months and 10 days.

He leaves to mourn his passing one brother, Willie Frerichs of Douglas, Arizona, and four sisters, Mrs. Ernest Oefinger of Hondo, Mrs. Alfred Bader of Hondo, Mrs. Sam Haralson of Castroville, and Mrs. Paul Doerr of San Antonio. Besides these near relatives, he leaves numerous other relatives and many friends.

HERBERT C. HYATT DEAD.

The community was shocked by the tragic death of Herbert C. Hyatt which occurred Friday afternoon, August 7, 1931, at his ranch on the Hondo some ten or twelve miles northwest of Hondo. Mr. Hyatt had ridden into the pasture on his usual duties and when the horse came home without him search was instituted and his dead body was found by the side of the trail some two hundred yards from the ranch house. He had been shot in the left breast with the charge from a twelve gauge shotgun which was found near his lifeless body.

He was brought to Hondo and prepared for burial, and after a brief service Saturday evening at the undertaking parlors, conducted by Rev. R. W. Merrill and Albert Nelson, was taken to Gillett, in Karnes County, where he was buried Sunday, August 9, 1931.

Deceased was born, February 29, 1884, and was a stock-farmer by occupation. He moved with his wife and two children from the Nixon section some four or five years ago and engaged in the sheep and goat business on the Geo. H. Pendele ranch. Besides his wife and two children, he is survived by four sisters and two brothers.

The family had made many friends since coming to Hondo and the grief-stricken ones have the heartfelt sympathy of all.

plete without a word concerning his and Brother King's devotion and love for each other. Like Jonathon and David, they loved and stood by each other for 60 years. Struggles and privations, sorrows and troubles drew them closer together.

Besides this children named, he leaves his widow, Sister Cora Lacy, 15 grand children, 12 great grand children and a host of friends to mourn his loss.

MR. GEORGE MUENNINK.

It was in 1856 when Mr. Friede Muennink and wife with five children left Germany and came to New Fountain, Texas, where they began life anew, with a firm belief that the opportunities offered in Texas would afford them privileges and advantages that could not be had in any other country. On March 27th, 1857, there was born into this home a son whom they named George. Another son and daughter came to bless this union later. In spite of the hardships, frontier experiences, and Indian attacks these pioneers, undismayed, established their home in the wilderness with a firm and stoic determination of rearing a family in the adopted country that should forever adore the principles of freedom, liberty, justice, and happiness, and become loyal citizens and patriotic defenders of the stars and stripes of this land.

Mr. George Muennink received that parental training so essentially necessary in making stalwart and aggressive citizens. He attended public school at Quibi and New Fountain under such tutelage as the land then afforded. In many instances the teachers were also the ministers of the churches. Under these environments he grew up into manhood with a clear conception of things worthy and noble, and with an abhorrence of that which tends to debase and destroy manhood.

On February 24, 1887, he was married to Miss Antje Saathoff, this union was blessed with ten children, viz: Fritz G., Mrs. C. H. Hartman, Mrs. F. A. Martin, Mrs. Henry Schuehle, Mrs. F. G. Senne, Mimke H., William G., Miss Emma, Mrs. Phil Shoop, and Louis. The youngest son, Louis, was bitten by a rattlesnake and died when he was about three years old.

Mr. Muennink entered the mercantile business before the advent of the railroad. He did his own freighting between San Antonio and points west. Many times he was subjected to the perils of the Redskins, but undaunted he pursued his labors and managed to "get by" without serious loss. He also operated the U. S. Post Office in connection with his store. The mails were carried by stage coach and made the New Fountain Post Office on regular schedule. When the Southern Pacific was built through Medina County, he, with his brother, John, did much construction work for the company.

When cotton made its advent in Medina County, he with his brother John, visualized the future, realized that a cotton gin would be a profitable investment, so in 1881 they built the first gin at New Fountain. In 1907 he sold his business in New Fountain and moved to Hondo where he operated a gin, mill, and mercantile, and electric power establishment, thus contributing much in the material upbuilding of Hondo.

In 1927 he retired from active life in business, but not a life in seclusion. His interests in political, church and civic organizations were keen and far-reaching and genuine. He had his convictions in politics and would stand by them irrespective of the results, but in his stand he would accord others justice and courtesy, and respect them and their convictions. He was opposed to piques and brawls, and would never submit to rash and hurried conclusions. As a citizen he was quiet and peaceable, but deeply interested in the affairs that confronted the welfare of the people. As a school man he supported every laudable and progressive step for the best interests of the children in his community. He always took a leading and active part in all educational affairs, and even gave his support financially to higher institutions of learning. His firm belief was that an investment in the minds of the youth of the land would realize large dividends, not in dollars and cents, but in nobler character.

As a churchman he was devout, faithful to his Master and his church, and supporting every branch of that institution. He enjoyed the association of the Christian people, and was regular upon the attendance of the ordinances of the church. As a father and husband he was devoted. He reared his children in the fear and admonition of the Lord. He set an example to them that was above reproach, and instilled in their hearts the spirit of faithfulness and loyalty to every worthy cause.

On July 11th he was accidentally hurt in an auto accident from which complications set in from which he

THE JUNIOR EDITOR IN THE LIONS' DEN.

At the invitation of the Lions, the Junior Editor and several other young ladies were guests of the local Lions' Club at their Tuesday noon-day luncheon this week.

Having attended a college students banquet sponsored by the Lions in 1930, this writer had some idea of the Club but she was rather agreeably surprised at the size of the membership, the long banquet board being filled on two sides with business men of Hondo who are Lions.

A feature that the Lions faithfully carry out is a program by talented artists at each weekly gathering. In this respect the Lions are a privileged club, perhaps the only club in town with the opportunity to listen to rare entertainment as often as one day each week. At the present meeting, the Lions and this editor were privileged to hear and enjoy a musical program preceding the luncheon by the musical-minded daughters of Lion W. N. Saathoff. As the President of the Club, Lion J. G. Barry, stated, "The attention accorded the program was sufficient commendation to the musicians that an exceptional performance was rendered." Miss Irene Saathoff, a graduate violinist, gave an accomplished and inspiring rendition of violin selections from the portfolios of the masters, the numbers being "Bourre" from Handel, "Serenade" by Moskowski, "Serenade" by Drdla and "Minuet" from Mozart. Her sister, Miss Esther, a talented pianist and possessor of a lovely soprano, accompanied at the piano, and as her part on the program sang the favorites, "Roses of Picardy" by Wood, "Down in Old Kentucky" by Morris and "Mighty Lak" a Rose" by Nevin. The song numbers were accompanied by soft violin music and at the piano by the capable pianist, Miss Leora Horger.

In key with the first class entertainment, the luncheon was of perfect cuisine and excellent service.

Following the luncheon, President Barry welcomed the guests and thanked the artists for the half hour of surpassing entertainment. During these few minutes of recognition the Junior Editor had her only qualms—and all because she wasn't left to her little nook to look, listen, eat and enjoy, but had to add her quota to the round-table. And she wishes to say here, as she told the Lions at the time, that any support they would like or need in the advancement of their projects, of which they have many, the columns of this paper are open to them and she will be all too willing to help in her small way.

Several interesting suggestions for club activities were made. Lion T. B. Knopp suggested supporting the Boy Scouts not only morally but financially and in every other way possible. Lion Barry urged the full support of the Lions of the Lions' Golf Course which was recently opened, giving the club members who are housed in offices throughout the day, a chance to get some good, clean out-door exercise. Tentative plans were discussed for an entertainment to be presented in the near future. If you remember a former presentation, watch for the Lions' second venture in the dramatic field.

The meeting was adjourned, and in spite of several minutes of near suffocation of the heart, arriving late for work and a questioning Senior Editor, the hour with the Lions' Club of Hondo was indeed a profitable and enjoyable one, and one to be repeated. Don't you think so?

This writer wishes to thank the Lions for the invitation, and in appreciation, she can say that all further invitations will be gratefully received.

died in the Santa Rosa Hospital, August 6, 1931. His passing cast a shadow over the entire county, for the county has lost a worthy citizen, the church an ardent, faithful worker and the home a loving affectionate father. # THE GREATEST VALUE EVER BUILT INTO A FORD CAR

The Beautiful
Ford Tudor Sedan

$490

(F. O. B. Detroit, plus freight and delivery.
Bumpers and spare tire extra at low cost.)

WHEN you buy a Ford car today, you buy what is unquestionably the greatest value in the history of the Ford Motor Company. Never before has so much beauty, comfort, safety and performance been offered at such a low price.

The low price of the Ford is something to think about because it means an immediate saving of many dollars — always an important consideration. But far more significant than price alone is what you get for that price. When high quality is combined with low price, you may justly take pride in having found a most satisfactory purchase.

See the Ford — ride in it — learn something about the value that is built into every part. The more you know about it, the more certain you will be that it is the car for you. It is literally true that when you "get the facts you will get a Ford."

Know Thyself

The man who knows just what he's about, must have his own number, without any doubt. It is only by knowing himself that he can be able to judge and size up his man. He who is able to judge a man right wins many a battle without having to fight. So study yourself it's the very best plan. You have of knowing the other man. The Hondo State Bank has found that you must know yourself to know who's who.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

GUEST ENTERTAINED.

County Board of Trustees convened August 10th, at 10 A. M. at the Hondo High School, with most of the rural district trustees represented. Mr. Frank Van Winkle of the State Department of Education was present and spoke on recent school legislation. The recent High School consolidation Law was amended that districts that will consolidate and maintain 11 grades will receive from the State $1,000 for each consolidation. Many schools of the State have taken advantage of this law and are making possible for the rural children to have equal opportunities with the city children. He stressed the need of thorough understanding between superintendent, teachers and trustees, and said that lawsuits had no place in the Public School System and could be averted if boards would consider the county superintendent the legal head of the school system and would strive to work with him, it was recommended that even the independent districts should exemplify a cooperative attitude toward the county department of Education.

He also stressed the imperative need of the budget system for the schools. This budget should be prepared by the county superintendent in the rural districts and the independent districts should have their budget prepared by the president of the board of trustees. The budgets as prepared should be filed with the County Clerk.

He also stated due to the deferring of making final taxpaying till October the State will not be able to make the final payment of apportionment for 1930-31 till about October the first. Since monies are not coming in as fast as we would like to see them come, the trustees should exercise economy in the expenditure of their funds, especially at the beginning of the scholastic year.

Mr. C. C. Godden, trustee of Precinct No. 4, spoke on the importance of organizing P. T. A's. in every school community. This organization is a vital factor in the life of the school and means much to the children of the school. The County Council cements the various schools of the county and thus makes the county a unit system.

Sup't. Saathoff spoke on the duties of trustees, and stressed the need of boards to acquaint themselves with the school, teacher, children and community; to employ teachers who stand above reproach, to have the school plant in sanitary conditions and have the entire community to co-operate with teacher and trustees in "putting over" a good school.

Prof. Scott spoke of the advantages of consolidated school, especially since we have good roads and proper means of transportation. No child should quit school before having finished the eleventh grade. He said that within a few years Hondo would be classed as a Junior College with all the graduates of the surrounding schools attending, thus saving thousands of dollars to the citizens who are now sending their children to Junior Colleges.

TEXAS AND TEXANS.

By
Will H. Mayes
"All Texans for All Texas"

Texas Moratorium.

A Washington correspondent seems to think that the present world-wide financial instability is largely chargeable to Texas. Texas just produces too much of everything that lowers prices, reduces circulation of money, impoverishes everybody and plays havoc general. Too much Texas wheat, Texas corn, Texas oats, Texas oil, Texas gas, Texas cotton, Texas cattle, Texas sheep, Texas fruits, Texas vegetables, Texas sulphur—everything—crowds the world markets, the correspondent thinks. The remedy suggested is a moratorium on all Texas activities. Texans are just too restless and energetic anyway and need the rest a moratorium of the kind would enforce. The suggestion is here passed on to Governor Sterling and the legislature and in event of their failure to act will be referred to Governor Murray of Oklahoma, who has a way of doing things.

Cutting in Half.

The Texas Commissioner of Agriculture would have farmers prohibited from planting cotton on the same land two years in succession and from planting more than half their lands in cotton—a sort of 50-50 farm moratorium. Why not apply the law to all crops and all production? Why restrict the cotton farmer by law and not the other fellows? Why not apply it to oil. Why let a landowner work more than half the time anyway, at anything? Farm labor is too cheap; why not boost it by enforced idleness? When a merchant fails to make money any year, why not force him to close his store for another year? When factory products fail to bring satisfactory profits, why not close the factories by law? Why let anybody manage his own property as he pleases, if farmers are to be denied that privilege? It would be well if farmers all over the South would cut cotton production in half and diversify their crops, but so long as this is a free country, they will resent laws to force such action.

School Per Capita.

Much talk is being made about school per capita reduction to below $17.50, as though it would be a great calamity to Texas. Costs of everything else are falling to pre-war levels, why not apply lower costs to school upkeep? School consolidations, lower overhead expenses, reduced salaries to conform to the times, fewer expensive wall maps, less football and baseball coaching, fewer bus trips over the State to athletic contests, restricted "supervision" of schools, more "honest-to-goodness" teaching by competent teachers and less playing at "school-keeping" are needed in Texas worse than a $17.50 per capita tax. Too much money is being paid in Texas for the kind of education Texas children are getting.

Texas Oil Situation.

Those who followed closely the voluminous testimony in the oil investigations now have some idea as to what the large companies want. They want the law of supply and demand to govern production and prices, but shy at any more regulatory laws. The bills that have been given most consideration differ but little from the laws that have been in force, and it is not likely that conditions will change much under any law that may be passed and approved. So far as can be seen now a smoke screen has been thrown over the Texas oil fields that merely enables the major companies to continue to appropriate Texas oil at their own prices and pleasure, and to charge what they please for their products. Quantity regulation without price regulation merely serves the interests of interlocking or "courtesy-controlled" corporations.

Restoring Texas Forests.

The agricultural editor of the Dallas News calls attention to the fact that more than 8,000,000 acres of East Texas forests are now under efficient State supervision and urges the handling of cut-over lands in a way to bring about natural reforestation as an assurance of a future timber supply. The reforestation of these millions of acres of fine East Texas lands would also bring about a much-needed balance in the farming system of that section. It would prove equally beneficial to other parts of Texas not adapted to forest growth. There is need in Texas for State-wide as well as for local diversification.

Million More in Roads.

The last sitting of the Texas Highway Commission contracted for about $5,000,000 more road building in Texas, so scattered throughout the State as to furnish employment for many thousand laborers. Texas-used gasoline supplements local taxation and Federal aid in maintaining prosperous conditions in Texas. Why let it be ruthlessly wasted in so many ways?

Robert E. Lee Park.
If Burnett is not slow to appreciate a good thing and to spend something that will prove a profitable and pleasurable investment, it will go right ahead with plans to secure for a park and pleasure ground the lands that were once the headquarters of General Robert E. Lee. The State stands ready to render a full share of help in improving the grounds, building water reservoirs and stocking them with fish, but it will be up to Burnett citizens to substantially support the movement.

Honoring a Texas Son.

It was fine of those Hill county people, who knew him when he was one of them, to meet and urge the Democratic party to nominate Melvin Traylor, now of Chicago, for President. Traylor is as good presidential timber as any one who has been mentioned in that connection or as any one who has served in that office for decades. Why shouldn't his friends tell the world so? "All Texas for all Texans" who deserve Texas support!

Politics at State Fair.

This columnist carefully avoids politics. That is left for the editors of the papers in which the column appears. Politics doesn't mix well with constructive development of a kind to which this feature is devoted. Neither does it mix well with other enterprises for the rebuilding of a State. For that reason the Franklin Roosevelt enthusiasts who met at Dallas recently, organized a Roosevelt-for-President club, and invited him to speak at the Texas State Fair in behalf of his candidacy, should rescind its action or the Fair directors should tell the club the State Fair is not run for political purposes.

Distributing Guaranty Fund.

More than $2,000,000 of bank guaranty funds is available for distribution to 954 banks in all parts of Texas under an order of District Judge J. D. Moore of Austin. Some $125,000 will be returned to 3,000 depositors in defunct banks at Cisco, Altoga, Mount Calm, Trinidad, Kemp, Genter, Addison and Belton. These large sums placed back in circulation should help business in the many localities into which the money will go.

Texas Honored.

One doesn't have to live in a big city or to be a big man physically to get National recognition if he deserves it. Walter D. Adams of Forney, small of physique, modest in manner, but big in brain—a genial, village druggist—has been elected president of the American Pharmaceutical Association, and will preside at the 1932 meeting in Toronto, Canada.

Fine Theatre Building.

Despite low prices of wheat and oil—Amarillo is in the center of an immense wheat and oil belt—that magical city is going ahead with a big building program. Nearly $500,000 is to be spent for a huge theatre and store building, the picture of which looks like a king's palace of former days.

Blackberry Days.

Three canneries at Lindale have canned over 50 cars of blackberries. A large field force was kept busy picking the berries and about 200 persons were employed canning. A blackberry patch in the Lindale section beats an oil well as a money-maker.

DELINQUENT TAX LIST 1929 PUBLISHED AT LAST.

After one year's delay since the order for publication was made, the 1929 delinquent tax list of the Bexar-Medina-Atascosa Counties Water Improvement District No. 1 is being published in the Hondo Anvil Herald. It gives a list of about 500 tracts of land out of the 40,000 acres in the counties of Bexar, Medina and Atascosa, reaching from below Devine, on the south to the Medina River on the north, between here and San Antonio. Less than 50 of the 450 tracts recited are other than the Land Company, and some of these have since reverted to the Company. The various tracts range in size from 1 acre representing a debt for that year to 2,555.71 acres, at $4.00 the acre, against the lands advertised, and does not include that of 1930. The reason for the delay in publication, and its publication in the Hondo Anvil Herald, was published over a bona fide signature, in the Devine News, on August 14, 1930, at which time a majority of the owners of the land in the district were subscribers and readers of The Devine News. At that time one of the directors of the district had resigned and the vote was two to two on practically every question of important measure brought up; two local directors voting against two of the company, the fifth man, who had resigned was in some way reinstated and they were able to proceed. So far as we can tell, all the local owners and occupants of the lands have paid, and their names are not on the delinquent list. A few have forfeited their claims the past year.

FEEDING NEW CORN TO HORSES.

By P. G. Holden,
Field Director, Agricultural Extension Department, International Harvester Company.

Be careful about feeding new or moldy corn to work horses. This is the time of year when feed grows scarce on some farms and we naturally turn to the ripening corn as a source of feed supply.

The digestive apparatus of the horse is very delicate. Many a useful work horse has died from indigestion or colic, caused by eating a full feed of new corn before it had become accustomed to it.

It would be better to buy some old corn or oats for the main portion of the ration and feed the new corn, an ear or two at a feeding, for several days before allowing the horse an entire meal of it.

Care May Save Loss.

You may have fed new corn to horses recklessly for many years without serious effects. That does not assure you that you can do it again. It is better to be careful than to lose a valuable animal. Moldy corn is sure to cause trouble and moldy new corn is apt to be fed at this time of year.

The farmer goes to the corn field often with a sack for a supply of feed; the sack of green ears is left sitting in the stable for a few hours, and while it may not be apparent, the ears have molded wherever they touched each other before they are fed. Perhaps the trip to the corn field is made with a wagon and enough ears snapped off for two or three days' feed. Part of this supply is almost sure to mold before it is fed.

When new corn is brought from the field, spread it out. Don't leave one ear touching another if it can be avoided. Better place them on a slatted floor. Hogs and cattle can eat new and moldy corn without apparent injury, but this is not true with horses.

Silage Good for Horses.

Silage has often been condemned as farm feed, yet silage is an excellent feed for horses if fed by a careful feeder who always remembers that horses are easily killed with sudden change of feed or with spoiled food.

In feeding silage, accustom the horses to it gradually and never give them silage taken from near the door of the silo. Nor is it a good plan to feed them silage taken from the outer edge of the silo where there is apt to be mold.

The number of farm horses that die from digestive troubles at this time of the year is great. Don't add your horses to the list.

THE AUSTRIAN WINTER PEA.

Crop specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture recommend the Austrian winter pea as a good green-manure crop for the Cotton Belt. Its value lies in ability to stand cold weather in winter and yet make enough growth in the warmer spells to turn under in early spring before planting cotton and corn. The Austrian winter pea germinates quickly, is especially winter hardy in the South, has a large root system, and is succulent and decays rapidly, making a large amount of plant food easily available. In the cotton belt, plant it in late September or early October, say the crop specialists. Earlier plantings may be damaged by nematodes and later ones may give poor stands and light growth. When planted for the first time the crop should be inoculated. Plow under the crop two weeks before corn planting and three weeks before cotton planting. Superphosphate is the most essential fertilizer. Peas planted for the first time need at least 300 pounds of superphosphate and 50 pounds of nitrate of soda. In succeeding seasons they may need little or no fertilizer. Austrian winter peas and rye are a good mixture for poor sandy soils. Experimental tests in several of the Gulf States show that increased yields of cotton and corn resulted from the use of Austrian winter peas as green manure.

LITTLE FIBS THAT NEVER WEAR OUT.

"Well, I had a good time, but it's good to be back at work again."
"Oh, we don't mind riding in the rumble seat a bit."

"Aw, let the kids stay here, Bill. They don't bother us."
"Listen, I know I'm in, but I'll put in another chip, anyhow."
"Go right ahead, Mrs. Smith! We always enjoy Amos 'n Andy."
"Usually it's very cool here at night. I can't understand why..."
"Really, I think your daughter has a marvelous voice."
"... And we hope you'll come over and see us real soon!"
—Chet Johnson in Judge.

THE FARM PROBLEM

By Fred W. Davis, Contributing Editor

TO THE FARMERS of this nation, who are waging a losing fight in an unequal struggle to secure a just participation in the wonderful civilization their toil and investments have contributed most to secure and upon whom its perpetuity primarily depends, this brief is dedicated:

DENIED PROFITS THE UNDERLYING CAUSE.

In this discussion I have not attempted to follow any precedent and admit that the views herein expressed are at variance with a vast majority, if not all, of our foremost writers upon this question. But I have been unable to harmonize the views of economic writers with the actual needs and conditions of farm life. I believe it is possible that a vast majority of our economists are so far removed from actual farm conditions they have not properly diagnosed the farmers' troubles, consequently, have erroneously prescribed for them. Trace history as far as we can, and it is found that the producers who should be first, have been the lowest in rank. Beyond question, history is repeating itself here in America. While our enlightenment is causing us to give the question of production a more serious consideration than seems generally to have been the case in times past, yet, there is a striking resemblance between the advice being given to producers by our present writers and teachers, to that given to the Roman farmers and those of other civilizations centuries ago. It all alike falls short of squarely facing the issue.

Knowing the farm problem is more serious than shown by surface indications, and, as a practical farmer having some intimate knowledge of the thoughts of those who farm, I have herein endeavored to briefly and clearly express the farmer's side of this question and let the public give it such consideration as it may deserve.

In discussing farm conditions, one class of critics assert bad conditions are the result of thriftlessness on the farmer's part. It is pointed out that a goodly number of our farmers lack the necessary ambition to earn a respectable livelihood; others claim extravagance, while many others claim a lack of business ability is the cause of the poor conditions of the farmers. If this conception of the business of farming is true why should we have, from a business standpoint, any greater farm problem than merchant's problem, or the lack of success of any other one of our major industries? The same human weaknesses are found among the people in every calling.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF BUSINESS.

Let us take a general survey of the situation. There are certain unfavorable farm conditions which no posted person will dispute. The debate comes when we seek to find the cause and remedy. Production gets a leading consideration in the early development of every civilization. Civilization truly begins with the plow, but ends when nations forget the plowman. Production begets industries. All the complexities of life, as well as life itself, has for its bed-rock, raw materials produced either by natural causes or by cultivation. It is truly a basic industry. But when life becomes competitive and complex, and other industries challenge the attention of people, why does production lose its rank? As this has been the invariable result ever since man has kept a record, there must be some cause common to all.

True to history of all the past, the day of the American producer is passing. Public men still point, however, with pride, to the fact that they were born and reared in the country. In view of the fact that almost every person seeking public leadership are retrospective farmers only, it is not an idle question to ask why they did not stay on the farms. For a real producer to be elected to a public office of consequence and power is so unusual that it creates nation-wide comment. Yet, the farm vote is greater than that of any other one class. So much for the farmers' political status.

The same condition prevails in the business world. The kings of finance are not found in the country, nor engaged in the business of producing farm products. Large concerns that produce raw products extensively usually have their own business houses for the disposal of such products. Yet, production is still the biggest, as well as the most important business of the nation. Isn't there an impelling cause for this condition? Is it thriftlessness, laziness or extravagance, either singly or combined? There are lazy farmers the same as we find in other callings, but this charge can not be expanded into a cause for failure peculiar to the producers as a class. If it were extravagance, its manifestations would be seen in the exploitation of the luxuries of this inventive age. None of these are major causes of the inevitably low rank of farmers as a class. They are but incidental, and such personal weaknesses are often found manifested to a greater degree among the wealthy.

In the pioneer stages of a country's development the lack of transportation facilities makes the purposes of production both personal and necessary. But with development of complex life, production ceases to be personal. With the building of cities and the establishment of commerce and industries, the object of production ceases to be one of personal necessity and becomes one of business. A refusal to recognize that farming becomes a business whenever life becomes complex, and as a business must be permitted to follow business rules, is the chief cause of the inevitable farm problem in every civilization. The next great cause is the belief that farming is a simple, easy calling.

THE FARMERS' BUSINESS.

Let us make a fair comparison of the farmers' business: A bank is established and seeks deposits and general banking business. A railroad is built and equipped then seeks tonnage. A merchant buys a stock of goods then seeks customers. Farms are purchased and produce raised upon them for sale. Now, speaking in general terms, if the bank can secure business, it will succeed. If the railroad gets tonnage it will succeed. If the merchant gets customers he will succeed. This is true because in each case these industries are established and maintained upon a profit-making basis. If there is failure it is due to individual causes. The banker charges enough for his services to make his bank pay. The same with the others. They would consider it unthinkable if anything else were expected of them. The public agrees to the justice of this business rule. The banker, the railroad and the merchant each concedes this right to the others. If the bank loans any money to the railroad it is for the purpose of helping the railroad make a business success. The banker knows the country needs the road. If he loans the merchant money it is to enable him to carry his goods until customers call for them at the market, or profit price. In fact, as stated, their attitude to each other and to the general public is understood and accepted. They stand or fall upon their merits.

What about the farmer's business? Whether he produces wheat, corn or cotton for sale, he takes a business hazard daily in the uncertainties of the weather. These are business factors peculiar to his trade and cannot be predetermined. He does not know whether the early indications of spring are real or merely seeming, consequently does not know whether to plant early or late. He does not know whether the seasons will be normal or abnormal; does not know whether floods, drouth, insects, disease, frost, or hail, will spare the wheat and hit the corn and cotton; or whether they will spare none, or all. A crop may be ready to harvest and a flood or hail destroy it in a few minutes. An early frost may destroy a fair prospect because the mercury got too low for only a few hours. No other business is half so complicated and no other business has to take any such risks. To insure against them all is prohibitive. The fact that no firm would insure farmers against all these hazards for a reasonable and practical charge proves the great uncertainties of the business of farming.

Then, when the farmers have weathered all the plagues and have produced wheat, corn, oats or cotton for the market, they are denied the right to get together and determine the cost of their produce and charge up these business hazards to the buying public. If they go to the banker and tell him they have certain staple products for sale and wish to borrow money to run them until the customers come and buy their products at a profitable price, the banker will refuse to make the loan and tell them it is wrong to fix prices. They are admonished to sell their products for whatever the buyer is willing to pay. After the banker has financed the merchant so he could hold his goods until these farmer customers would buy them at a profit, or financed the railroad that charged a fixed price and re-
